

DEAF SERVICES
providing a vital link between people who are Deaf, hard-of-hearing and hearing
in Northwest Indiana.

Becoming a department of TradeWinds Services in 2014, Deaf Services has provided support, education, advocacy, and access to technology for individuals and families dealing with hearing loss since 1978.

As the only nonprofit agency in Northwest Indiana, our services assist in bridging the gap between both the deaf and hearing worlds. TradeWinds Deaf Services facilitates communication with interpreting, case management, advocacy, and referral services while providing education and sensitivity training for the hearing.

AMERICAN SIGN LANGUAGE (ASL)

American Sign Language – not English – is the first language for many people who are Deaf or hard-of-hearing. They often have a difficult time reading, writing, or understanding the English Language.

The challenge is that the world around people who are Deaf or hard of hearing relies upon communication to understand information.

COMMUNICATION IS THE KEY TO UNDERSTANDING

The lack of incidental learning that people who are Deaf or hard of hearing experience has a considerable impact on their ability to manage daily routine tasks. These tasks can be related to legal, medical, financial, or employment issues and can impact their ability to solve problems at a time of crisis.
